DEDICATED
to the
SPIRIT OF PROGRESS
by the
CLASS OF '90

In sincere gratitude for the benefits of recent evolution, and with buoyant hope for the future of
Alma Mater's institutions.

☀ PREFACE ☀

SINCE the publication of the precedent LEGENDA by '89, there has been notable increase in the collegiate spirit and enterprise of Wellesley. The development is goodly to see. Oftentimes Wellesley's intense individuality has laid her open to the charge of narrowness, so that it is with sincerely hearty congratulations we recognize her new departure in the broad field of college interests.

Perhaps no better sign of the times can be offered than the brief, but truly successful, history of the reorganized societies, Phi Sigma and Zeta Alpha. A year ago they had but their names, a background of reminiscence, and a future of ideals. To-day, with only the year's slight experience, their influence and success are assured, and their future is even more hopeful in the promise of developing true fraternity feeling, and a fine womanhood as its upholder. Material evidence of their real prosperity may be found any day in Society Hall.

While the Class of '90 has, without doubt, taken to itself much pride in the regeneration of the Greek-letter Societies, '91 has done the College a desirable and lasting service in emphasizing college unity, rather than class distinction, by the adoption of the '90 pin as a design for the College badge. Other proof of the change from individual to more general interests is not wanting. The institution of the College cheer, the organization of the College Glee and Banjo Clubs, and the hearty student support of the "Prelude" editors, mark a signal advance. In the publication of the LEGENDA, also, the editors have more than once been honestly gratified by the appreciative co-operation of the College at large. It has served to make the work simpler, and we believe the result will be more enjoyable.

There is evolution in the making of college publications as in all things else, and we trust we are not unduly priding ourselves in the thought that this year's LEGENDA evidences the universal truth. Certainly there has been enough of progress within the college walls to show its character in the college annual. The novel features and the beauty of the book will be recognized, we believe, without our comment.

It is a matter of most cordial satisfaction to us, as it must be to many others, that dragons in persona are no longer a feature of the institution. To the discrimination and success of '89, we feel that this emancipation is in a measure due, and accordingly render our warmest thanks with whatever of annual fruit '89 may find sprung up from the lusty seed she sowed. In all sincerity we hope that we have not violated the confidence reposed in us; that we have in no wise periled to future classes the privilege we have enjoyed; and that the judgment we have exercised has been at all times sound and kindly, never prudish.

From many members of the Class of '90 the editors have received valued assistance. In particular we desire to recognize the work of Miss Martha Pike Conant, Z A, quondam associate editor, and the aid of Miss Charlotte E. Halsey, A. S., Miss Mabel Doolittle, and Miss Sarah M. Bock, S. S.

This gives the condition of the class at the period noted. Tracing to the next record (Sophomore, 2), the class will be found to pass through a characteristic phase and remain stationary at this point for some time. In like manner trace to records (Junior, 6), (Senior, 2) and (Fifth Year, 3), noting that the lines crossed by the curve record the history of 89's varied course. Note the phase of the Fifth Year is a course understood to be second childhood.

The careful consideration of the student will enable him to see that these phases form an ascending series of the concepts and ideas of a college class.

86. THE name '90 is of Arabic origin, and the Class to which the appellation was applied existed in its essential character long before the Matriculation. At the time of the domestication of this estate the township in which they settled was fully organized, and presided over by a tun-gemot and a tun-gerefa, possessing powers regulated and directed by a statute code traditionally derived from the customs of the ancient Frankish moot. The land was divided into Folkland and Bookland, and there is abundant documentary evidence concerning the transfer of lands, especially in the case of grants made by charter, by which Folkland was turned into free and alodial Bookland. As freemen '90 held grants of sac and soc—a privilege attained at the cost of the sacs and socs of a now obsolete class of tenants-in-chief registered in Domesday as '88. The character of the novæ studentes was marked by a preponderance of uncurbed velocity, which was exercised mainly with a view to the furtherance of their own interests. The previous holders naturally resented this attitude, and regarded the new-comers as Upstarts.

87. The duodecima charta was the first great public act of the Class after it had realized its own identity. It was based on the charta of '89, l.; in the main following the arrangement of that famous document, but evidences a higher stage of civilization on the part of its framers. It was ratified by order of the Hundred Court, and entered in the archives as Vl. Freeman, c. 4.

LEGENDA.

In accordance with the venerable customs of the township, '90 elected representatives for the supervision of their agricultural interests. At stated festivals the whole community assembled to participate in certain rites attendant upon the planting of a tree, symbolic of their status. On these occasions the Class observed the established precedent, and appeared in the assembly wearing liveries characteristic of their definitive traits. Their costumes varied at different epochs; those most prominent in history being the garb of royal maidens, the plumage of Minerva's birds, the apparel of a meek and quiet spirit, and the raiment of communal consummation.

Customs.

88. As '90 became wedded to her adopted abode, historians mention a higher degree of cultivation, as shown by their attention to the art of minstrelsy. It is a fact, however, that they never attained distinguished rank in this pursuit. The cause may, perhaps, be assigned to a succession of petty civil wars, the most notable of which was that known as the Crew-war. Notwithstanding the drawbacks of these internal dissensions, it is remarkable to note the perseverance of this class in the fostering of aesthetic amenities. Of peculiar interest is the record of a great celebration, in the spring of their third year in the township, on which occasion brilliant social and decorative abilities were displayed.

Increase in Civilization.

Dissension.

89. At this period their political and economic condition must have been one of great prosperity, since they were able to collect, as tonnage and poundage, a large quasi-voluntary tax. A part of this tax, together with the scutage for that fiscal year, they are said to have remitted to a Mongolian tribe. Great stress is laid on this act in the Pipe Rolls. However, '90 seems to have been unable to maintain existence without causing oppression or exciting malignity, into which latter evil the Class now fell. For some length of time the relations of the community were uneasy and strained, owing to '90's attributed attempts to gain class privilege and class isolation.

Taxation.

Strained
Relations.

90. The next mention of '90 in the records would seem to indicate that a portion of their history was lost to posterity, for they are described in the Rolls as occupying a position of more lofty honor and dignity than the preceding entry would seem to warrant. This advance may be explained by the fact that a new leader had aroused in them nobler ideals of internal administration and foreign relations, and that the older generations, to whose adverse presence their early troublous history seems partially due, had vanished from the land.

The
beginning
of the End.

No more fitting evidence of this could be cited than the oath of fealty taken under the new leader, who was chosen to hold this preëminent position through life. The oath welded '90 in a compact and perpetual union to further the beneficent action of the individual in the cause of the universal.

Fealty.

Erratum.

In these days of careful and persistent scientific investigation, all treatises on scientific subjects are liable to constant corrections and additions. The editors of the LEGENDA take pleasure in being able to insert here the most recent observations on NINET-YÓNESTATICS. A number of reliable authorities on the subject have reported their inability to detect or induce charges of egotistic ambition in the “green protoplasmic structure” mentioned in this lecture. The statement is on the whole so well supported, that it is generally believed the previous deductions from experiments in NINET-YÓNESTATICS were false, and the theory is now advanced that this body of protoplasm never held ambitious charges, but is possessed of a remarkable property not unlike magnetism. — the nature of which property scientists have not yet discovered.

Chapter III.

NINET-YÓNESTATICS.

Lesson XIII. — “Theory of Motor Force.”

167. By the lessons in Chapter I. the student will have obtained some elementary notions upon the existence and magnitude of certain definite qualities peculiar to bodies from the very nature of their particles. In the present lesson, which is both one of the hardest and one of the most important to the beginner, and which she must therefore study the more carefully, the laws which concern the existence of ambitious qualities and their magnitude are more fully explained. That part of the science of ambition which deals with the deportment of egoistic particles in relation to other particles, is called NINET-YÓNESTATICS. We shall begin by discussing first the simple laws of ambitious force which were brought to light in Chapter I., by simple experimental means.

168. FIRST LAW OF NINET-YÓNESTATICS.—Ambitious charges of similar signs repel one another, but ambitious charges of opposite signs attract one another. The fundamental facts expressed in this law were fully explained in Lesson I. Though familiar to the student, and apparently simple, these facts require for their complete explanation the aid of advanced experimental analysis.

169. SECOND LAW OF NINET-YÓNESTATICS.—The force exerted between two charges of ambition (supposing them to be collected at points, or on two small spheres) is directly proportional to their product, and inversely proportional to the square of the distance between them. This law, discovered by MERMAN, and called Merman’s Law, was briefly alluded to (see Loci page) in the record of observations made. We have seen that a similar law held good for forces exerted between two magnet poles, placed opposite each other in a lecture room; one pole, N, repelling the other, F, with an intensity equal to the products of their known forces. This was a signal instance, since the force produced was so great as to render apparent a marked effect on pole F; namely, to incapacitate it for action, in causing its removal from the field of Force. Merman expressed this law in the following symbolic manner —

$$(1) \int \text{ is proportional to } N \times F.$$

$$(2) \int \text{ is proportional to } \frac{1}{d^2}$$

170. AMBITION CREATED BY INDUCTION.—We have now learned how two charged bodies may attract one another. It has been found that ambition of one sign will induce that of opposite sign in a body. For this experiment we take the apparatus shown in Fig. 3, Chapter I., consisting of a long, open-mouthed vessel of clay, charged with altruistic ambition, and a protoplasmic structure colored by chlorophyl. The presence of the altruistic ambition of the clay vessel near this green body is found to induce ambition in the body. The outer surface of the protoplasmic structure is discovered to be charged with altruistic ambition, which is evidenced by the attraction to it of small bits of pink and white protoplasm. As the body is connected with the earth by any conductor, as a racket, the altruistic ambition is discharged, and the presence of egoistic ambition is detected by the repulsion of these lilac and gold lumps of clay, which have already been charged with ambition of the same sign (see Loci page). It appears, then, that ambition of one sign induces in any body ambition of the opposite sign: i. e., ambition of both signs is induced in the body to be charged; the altruistic charge remains on the surface, the egoistic being driven to the interior; when the surface charge is dissipated by connection with the earth, the charge within diffuses itself through the whole body. In further illustration of this effect a second experiment may be cited. The green protoplasmic structure is not connected with the earth, but is suspended from a blue and gold convex surface by this delicate, insulating thread of fancy, colored by sarcasm. When the thread is set in motion curious effects are observed; the tinkling of small bells is audible, and a particolored figure in cap and —

AIR — "OLD UNCLE NED."

SYLVANUS has measured the Junior Class:
Resistance was dreadfully low.
O'er Wheatstone's Bridge she never could pass
To the place where she wanted to go.

CHORUS.—Lay down the racket and the oar,
Seize the electroscope once more:
There's no more rest for the Junior Class,
Sylvanus Thompson has the floor.

They've fastened her in an induction coil,
The telegraph ticks at her side;
At electric units they're making her toil,
Her threats and tears are defied.

CHORUS.—Lay down, etc.

The Soliloquy of Miss Ego, '92.

THE soft winds of the summer kiss me gently where I lie,
 And those breezes bear thought backward to a time not long passed by,
 When the corridors were classic that my climbing footsteps trod,
 And I spurned the stairs behind me in the spiral upward plod ;
 For my feet have never faltered in the fast and furious race.—
 They perhaps have left the tokens that my path most surely trace.
 How I hauled men's hearts in with them on that festive holiday,
 When in dainty clover colors danced I round the pole of May !
 All along my course I've chosen for my own peculiar sign,
 Lightly tripping, winning Terpsy out of all the tuneful nine.
 Through the dullest days I've danced it with a buoyant bonhomie
 That goes far to gild the future with a glow right fair to see.
 Ah thou pink-tipped little clover, canst thou aught to come foretell ?
 'Twas my Faculty that gave thee, and thou know'st she loves me well.
 After such a marked approval, sure it cannot be at last
 She will frown on me, her fondling, or inform me I've not passed !
 No ! 'tis nonsense even to name it—what thou hast been thou wilt be,
 Token of my days in college, days of fun and jollity ;
 And the days that chase each other, as all days are wont to do,
 Can bring nothing sad or noxious to a mind that loves the new.
 Spite of all the physical perils that beset my future path,
 I shall shine, without the study that reduces to a lath.
 Many weeks, perchance, may pass first ; well, I am content to wait,—
 Noblest maiden need not hurry for to choose herself a mate.
 Witness my serenest conduct, calm and cool as evening blue,
 Ere I hail th' honorable member, happy, since of '92.
 "No man may attain to knowledge, ere he taste of folly's cheer,"
 Is the very newest reading of the name I bear this year.
 And there cannot fail to follow, glory, grace, and power galore
 For one who so apt has acted the audacious Sophomore.

LEGENDA.

Yet I would not have men fancy, that in pranks I'm Simon pure ;
Nor, for all my drowsy seeming, have not trouble to endure.
When a-crew's to me such sorrow, just because my blood is blue,
And I can't in silence suffer that the folk of '92
Float a boat on Waban's water rowed by maids with ruddier blood,
Yet I'm calm,—I veil my anguish, quell my tears' swift, salty flood.
Dream I still, poor faded clover, of the future's goodly store,—
Dream of Germans, Junior glories, of the life that I adore.
Now the low beams strike the tree-trunks ; they bid maidens hasten home,
Lest the boggy in the skirts and yellow tennis shoes should come,
Unto whom this spot is sacred 'twixt the hours of seven and four ;
But when next I come, a Junior, him, nor any, I'll fear more.

Spring Song.

LAY the fields all bright
In the sun's white light,
And the grasses rustling, swaying
In the soft, sweet air
Floating everywhere,
That would have been a breeze but didn't quite dare;
And the world was all repaying
Spring's delaying.

And the grass grew tall,
But above it all,
Just above it shyly peeping,
There were two blue eyes,
Blue as springtime skies,
And two that were brown, of the deep brown guise
Of the daisy-hearts now keeping
Watch unsleeping.

And who could have known
That the flowers had blown,
Had there been no eyes in the grasses:
And where was the need
Of the meadow's weed,
Or the air that is almost a breeze, indeed,
As it blows the buttercup masses
And then passes.

Yes! the grass grew green,
But who could have seen
That springtime banners were blazing?
For a daisy said,
With a toss of her head,
That the blue eyes looked at the brown instead,
And the brown in the blue were gazing.
Twas amazing!

HEAUTENPHILONONE; OR, NINA TYTHRÉE.

Dramatis Personæ.

MRS. ALMA FOSTERING
HER THREE SONS
NINA TYTHRÉE, ALIAS UNA NIMITY } HER MAIDS {
ADDIE VANCE.	}

SCENE I. MRS. FOSTERING'S BOUDOIR.

Mrs. F. (wearily): "The five hundredth applicant! Show her in, Addie." (Enter Nina Tythrée with basket of books.) "You have come in answer to my advertisement? What is your name?"

N.: "Nina Tythrée."

Mrs. F.: "What a remarkable name! Excuse me, but are you French or Irish?"

N. (indignantly): "Neither! or, on the whole, both, and much more besides. I'm cosmopolitan. But I have another name—my pet name. I wonder if anyone will care to call me by it here?"

Mrs. F.: "What is it, my dear?"

N.: "It's Una Nimity."

Mrs. F.: "Well, that's English, at all events. Your recommendations are satisfactory, but I never depend wholly on those things, so I must ask you a few questions. But, bless me! you've brought your luggage already."

N.: "These, ma'am, are my inseparable companions. I never travel without them."

Mrs. F.: "Well, literary taste in a young person is a good thing if not carried too far. What have you there? For I warn you I can't tolerate anything so transient as life, or intoxicating as punch."

N.: "This, ma'am, will be, I'm sure, as you like it; it was written in a country churchyard; this acts homœopathically against pride and prejudice, and this is a valuable collection of prose works by Jones. I have also my "Travellers' Guide," by Gulliver, and—and one other book, not quite so strongly recommended; but it is my favorite."

Mrs. F. : "What is that?"

V. : "It's—it's a novel by Victor Hugo."

Mrs. F. : "French! I insist on knowing the title."

V. : "'93."

Mrs. F. : "Well, everyone has some pet folly, and I'm thankful this is no worse. We must be a little more business-like, however. You know the functions of your position?"

V. : "What are those, ma'am?"

Mrs. F. : "Such innocence moves me to tears! You are to tend the door, you know. Addie Vance, who has already been with me a year, and who let you in, will show you about it."

V. : "I guess I don't need any showing; and I don't believe she could do it, anyway."

Mrs. F. : "Are you satisfied with your perquisites? Half an acre of ground, four crackers a day, unlimited innocence, and $350 per year; it is more than I have been accustomed to allow. And you don't have to wash any plates, as all the maids before you have done."

V. : "It is more than enough, ma'am. Only, if an interchange could be effected, I would be willing to change some of the land for more crackers; and the innocence I could spare entirely without missing it."

Mrs. F. : "Impossible! Then there is one other thing: you must agree to get on nicely with Addie, and to preserve at the same time a lively affection and an immense respect toward my sons—my eldest and my others, Sophroniscus and Junius."

V. : "Certainly, unless they get in my way. I am not very fond of children."

Mrs. F. : "So much the better. You are sure you can guard yourself against becoming crushed?"

V. : "Behind the door, ma'am?"

Mrs. F. (aside): "Delightful innocence!" (Aloud.) "Consider yourself engaged on trial."

SCENE II. CORRIDOR IN MRS. FOSTERING'S HOUSE.

Mrs. F. (entering from farther end): "I must put a stop to this! I hear nothing but the door-bell from morning till night. My sons go out merely for the sake of coming in again." (She discovers her eldest son seated on a sofa beside Nina, and watches them unobserved, the bell meantime ringing frantically.)

Her eldest : "My dear child, did you never feel an inward strife—a yearning which could find relief only in communion with another?"

N. : "No, indeed; why should I? My dolls are not stuffed with sawdust: they are the nicest little Japanese skeletons; and my brother will never leave me and go to Scotland. But Mr. Junius is ringing." (She goes to the door, and is concealed by it for a moment, during which time these words are heard.) "Oh, thank you, Mr. Junius: it's ever so kind of you to take me to the party, and I'll certainly go. But I really don't care to kiss you." (Junius passes her with dejected air, and seats himself beside his brother. Sophroniscus attempts to enter. Nina shuts the door in his face, but opens it at a sign from Mrs. F.)

N. : "Oh, thank you, Mr. Sophroniscus, for these beautiful flowers! But if you try any of those tricks, you know, I must throw cold water on you." (Sophroniscus joins his brothers.)
Ad. V. (enters, singing).

N. : "Oh, my dear, how long since I have seen you! Come, sit down before the mirror with me, and let's read this new novel together—it's Olney's latest. To think that there was a time when I didn't love you! That was before I knew you for a twin soul,—a part of myself. Don't you wish those bothersome creatures would go away and leave us to ourselves?"

Ad. V. : "Ye—e—s. Do you know, I've often been mistaken for Mr. Sophroniscus."

N. : "How odd! Don't you worry, dear; you're not a bit like him."

The youths : "Fair these maids are, and unanimous; that's plain. But responsive—not much!"

Mrs. F. (coming forward) : "Thank Fortune! My sons are safe, and I need not look for another maid. So long as it is not directed toward those of a class above her, I can overlook a little excess of affection. And she is so (here her voice is broken with emotion, so that it is impossible to tell whether the next word is "discreet" or "conceited") . . . that I need have no fears of its ever extending above herself."

Moral Jingles.

HERE is a simple rule of life
Each child should bear in mind :
That the last bell at ten o'clock
Her snug in bed should find ;
And that she ne'er with noisy talk
Annoy her teachers kind.

We hope each child has now received,
And studied faithfully,
The printed rules regarding all
That should avoided be,
And that she for her model takes
The noble Faculty.

And when, her lessons all well learned,
She seeks the open air,
And sees the Seniors dignified,
Their faces marked with care,
Returning from the village store,
To study to repair,—

Think not the many paper bags
Which in their hands you see,
Hold candy, peanuts, or the like
Of such frivolity :
'Tis Pearline, soap, and other things
For stern necessity.

To a Well Known Shore.

SPECIAL STUDENTS.

Documents Relating to a Crisis in Their Career.
Historic and Legendary.

WHEN in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one organization to dissolve the conditional bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the Powers of the community the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature (Survival of the Fittest; Selective Faculty) entitle them.—we, appealing to justice for the rectitude of our intentions, do in the Name, and by the Authority of good People of this Society, solemnly publish and declare that this Organization is, and of Right ought to be, a Free and Independent Body.

[Signed.]

SPECIALA ROBESPIERRE HANCOCK.

There was muttered revolution
'Mongst the hoary Special band;
Stern defiance marked the faces
Once so eruditely bland.

Quiet corners heard deep plottings;
Low they whispered, each to each;
And the discontent waxed greater
As each Special said her speech.

“We can do it! We must do it!
As we stand, life's but a grind;
There's no pleasure for the Special,
With her rank thus undefined.

LEGENDA.

“ Let us, in a proclamation,
Sue that body known to fame
As the Academic Council,
For a station and a name.

“ Let us shout throughout the College,
Far and wide let ring the tones,
We renounce the time-worn figure
Likening us to rolling stones.”

So they waited for the signal
Which their leader bold should make,
When, with one loud cry for freedom,
They should from their thralldom break.

As the fickle fire crackers
On the fourth of each July,
Burn with promise of explosion
But to fizzle out and die,—

So the Special revolution
Faded, flickered, ceased to be :
In their archives it lies buried :
Say we to it, “ R. I. P.”

SODALES PEREGRINANTES quinto decimo quoque die convenire solent. Propositum est, usu exercitationeque, latine loquendi, et facultatem suis quasque literas sonis enunciandi, et calliditatem celeritatemque verborum in sententias disponendorum, et vocabulorum copiam acquirere; denique quandam Latinæ linguæ scientiam consequi.

Grata est Sodalibus hæc exercitatio, operibus cottidianis absolutis, relaxationem animi jucundam præbens.

Sodales, in itineribus per urbes Italiæ principes, multa de moribus legibusque populorum antiquorum et hujus ætatis discunt: itaque delectationem, haud minus quam fructum ex illis peregrinationibus, quæ miscent utile dulci, adaptæ sunt.

 Eight little Wabanites, all mudding Javons;
 One understood it and then there were seven.
 Seven little Wabanites, all with consciences tricks;
 One went and "gessed up" and then there were six.

Six little Wabanites, very much alive;
 One got sat upon, and then there were five.
 Five little Wabanites, thine "ripples" are a bore,
 One found one funny joke, and that left four.

Four little Wabanites at afternoon tea;
 One drank a whole cup, and then there were three.
 Three little Wabanites feeling very blue;
 One got an unknown crush, and then there were two.

Two little Wabanites would not danger shun;
 One met McGinty, and then there was one.
 One little Wabanite, having lots of fun,
 She got a yellow note, and then there were,

☀ A VISIT ☀

Being a Colloquial Description of Wellesley College as seen by Typical Visitors in charge of an Office-girl.

SCENE . . . INTERIOR OF WELLESLEY COLLEGE.

TIME . . . 10.15 ON A JUNE MORNING.

FROM the avenue is heard a rumble of wheels. The coach reaches the porte cochère, and the fiery steeds are brought to a stop.

ENTER YOUNG MAN.

Young Man (to door-girl): "I would like to be shown over the College, if any of the young ladies are at liberty."

Door-girl: "Yes, sir. Please take a seat in the reception room."

ENTER YOUNG GIRL.

Young Girl: "Would it be too much trouble if—that is—I—could I see a part of the building, this morning?"

Door-girl: "Please walk into the reception room, and I'll see."

ENTER GENIAL PAPA IN BREEZY
FASHION.

Genial Papa: "Good-morning. Rather warm this morning. Now, I'd like to be shown around a little this morning and see the place. My daughter has just grad—"

Door-girl: "Yes, sir. Walk in this way, please."

PALMS

LEGENDA.

ENTER, INQUIRINGLY, MAIDEN LADY.

Maiden Lady: "Will you just see if the President is at home? Tell her it's Miss Simons, from Comstock."

(She follows the others into the reception room. Exit door-girl through open door to office. Telephone heard ringing in office. "Rrring, rrring, rrring," at intervals of two seconds.)

Voice from Office: "Hello! Telegram? Wait a minute. Ready." "Why—have—you—not—written?" "Yes, I have that." "Wrote—Saturday—and Tuesday.—Have—decided—" "Wait a minute. Girls, keep still a minute till I get this." "Have decided—to—forgive—you.—Heaven—bless—you,—my darling." "Jennie, look up Miss Blank in the schedule book, please, while I copy off this love letter. My! I'm glad I've got a chance to deliver it."

Secoud Voice (at large telephone): "But we must have that butter to-night. Hello.—Yes, this is Wellesley College. Butter, I said. Hello!—Is this Cheeseman & Co.?"

ENTER OFFICE-GIRL.

(Young Man springs to his feet hat and cane in hand. Genial Papa also rises and grasps the office-girl's hand cordially. Young Girl stands waiting silently while Maiden Lady steps forward and asks): "Is this the President?"

Office-girl (momentarily overpowered, but recovering herself): "I shall be glad to show you over the building if you will come this way."

(They proceed down the corridor toward the library, office-girl walking between Genial Papa and Young Man, while Maiden Lady and Young Girl follow close behind.)

Young Man: "You see, I had a friend here last year, and being on my way to New Haven, I thought I'd just stop off."

Office-girl: "What class was your friend in?"

Young Man: "She was a Junior last year. She would have graduated this year, but—"

Office-girl (tactfully hastening to cover his evident embarrassment): "Why, then she's a member of our class."

Genial Papa: "Now isn't it pleasant to meet people who know people you know? You may know my daughter next year. She's coming as a Special. Can't spare her more than one year, you know. I'm coming out to see the President sometime during the summer about her entrance in the fall."

Office-girl: "Then she hasn't applied yet?"

Genial Papa: "Oh, no! Not yet."

Maiden Lady (condescendingly to Young Girl): "Are you thinking of coming to Wellesley, sometime, when you are prepared?"

LEGENDA.

Young Girl: "Yes'm. I've just graduated from Franklin Academy. I was the valedictorian of my class."

Maiden Lady: "I shall probably take a special course as a teacher, taking up History as a branch of study in which I am much interested."

(They reach the library, and stand in the doorway.)

Office-girl: "This is the library, endowed by Professor Horsford. Do you care to go in?"

Chorus: "Oh, yes!"

(They descend the steps.)

Office-girl (turning to the right): "This is a portrait of Professor Horsford."

Voice (from dark alcove on right): "There are those boxes of newspaper strips, the white edges which we mend books with. We have twelve boxes full now that the girls have cut off, so we'll throw away three of them and begin to fill a new one. You might begin to dust now. This stiff brush is for the corners, and this one for the wood-work; and here are two cloths, this rough one to dust the books with, and this one to wipe off the shelves. Be very careful not to get them mixed."

Voice No. 2 (meekly): "Yes'm."

(The visitors pass on.)

Young Man: "How many volumes are there in this library?"

Office-girl: "Thirty-four thousand. Here is an old Dutch closet which contains many valuable books and other curiosities. I fear the librarian is too busy to open it this morning, however."

Genial Papa: "Is that bust at the end of the library, in the window, Daniel Webster?"

Office-girl: "No; that is Martin Luther. Here is the Rossetta stone."

Young Girl (cagerly): "Oh! In memory of Dante Gabriel Rossetti?"

Office-girl: "No, — that is — (hesitatingly), why, — it's that one that they found, — you know, — in —

Young Girl: "Oh, yes! Why, of course."

Office-girl: "You see, we have electric lights in the library, also in the reading room and the Faculty parlor."

LIBRARY.

LEGENDA.

Maiden Lady: "Yes; they're talking of introducing them in Comstock."

(They reach the door.)

Office-girl: "These are the boat-crew banners."

Young Man: "Are those the ones they use on Float Day, when they give a concert out in the middle of the lake?"

Office-girl: "Yes, but the concert is given near the shore."

Young Man: "Oh, is it? My chum was out here last year to the Float, and he said it was very misty and rainy, and he judged from the volume of sound that the girls were about half-way across the lake."

(They proceed.)

Office-girl: "This is the reading room. Here are placed the daily and weekly newspapers, and the Gertrude Library, containing books for Bible study."

(They turn to the statue of Diana.)

Young Girl: "Why! the deer's foot is broken!"

Office-girl: "Yes; that was done by one of the officers of the College, in lifting off some of the students' books which were placed on the pedestal."

(They reach the door of the Faculty parlor.)

Office-girl: "This is the Faculty parlor, fitted up for the Faculty by Professor Horsford, in the name of the Class of '86."

(The visitors seat themselves in the cushioned chairs, prepared to rest.)

Genial Papa: "What is that picture?"

Office-girl: "It is called 'Knowledge is Power.' It was presented to the students, and is kindly taken care of for us by the Faculty. The students never enter here."

Maiden Lady: "This frescoping recalls to my mind the ceiling in the parlor of the hotel in Comstock. That is a lighter and more cheerful room than this, however."

Office-girl (sweetly): "Now if you will come this way, please."

(They proceed upstairs to the chapel. The organ is being used vigorously, and loud thumps from the internal mechanism are interspersed among the chords.)

Maiden Lady: "I suppose your study hours extend through the greater part of the day, and that you are required to preserve quiet at such times."

Office-girl: "Yes. The students are expected to be comparatively quiet. No banjo-playing is allowed, as it disturbs those who are trying to study."

(The organ swells louder and louder, and the thumps increase in vigor.)

Office-girl: "This is the chapel. Some one is evidently practicing on the organ."

Young Man: "Is attendance at chapel compulsory?"

Office-girl: "Yes; but then it needn't be, for all of us love to go to chapel."

LEGENDA.

(They walk out to the second floor centre and downstairs to the first floor.)

Young Girl (pausing in front of Ellen Robbins' painting, Only a Mullein): "What a lovely stalk of mignonette!"* (Office-girl, with infinite tact, refrains from corrections.)

(At the door of the Browning Room.)

(Young Man has been left behind, studying the statue of Niobe.)

Office-girl: "This is the Browning Room, fitted up in honor of Mrs. Browning."

Chorus: "What a beautiful room!"

Maiden Lady: "Did the students paint the frieze?"

Young Man (entering breathlessly): "Why, what's this?"

Young Girl (explaining): "This is the Brown Room, fitted up in honor of Deacon Brown.* I suppose I know who he is, but I can't quite think.

Office-girl (controlling herself, and stepping back to young man): "This is the Browning Room, fitted up in honor of Mrs. Browning."

(Young Girl turns scarlet.)

Office-girl: "That is a bust of Mrs. Browning."

Genial Papa (turning to bust of the young Cæsar Augustus): "And this, I suppose, is Mr. Browning."*

Maiden Lady (looking at statue of Reading Girl): "This is Mrs. Browning in her youth, is it not?"

(Office-girl is occupied during these questions by a mighty effort at self-control.)

Office-girl: "Perhaps you would like to go up to the fifth floor? We will take the elevator.

(Young Girl stops to read notices on dining-room bulletin-board.)

Young Girl: "Students are again reminded of the necessity of being present at domestic work promptly. A word to the wise is sufficient."

(The rest wait at the elevator door, and to occupy the time read snatches from different notices posted there.)

Young Man: "Unexcused absences from chapel. Please see me immediately."

(His eye travels down the long column of names.)

Young Man: "Why, I thought you said you loved to go to chapel."

BROWNING ROOM.

* Fact.

LEGENDA.

Office-girl: "We do. There's my name down for Sunday, and I was there, and in my own row, too. There, it's crossed off now!"

(Elevator descends in a rheumatic fashion, and a Booth-like voice is heard saying tragically):

"Cassius is aweary of the world;
Hated by one he loves; braved by" —

(Elevator stops suddenly about two feet from the floor. A second voice exclaims):

"It's shtuck. Charles. I can't move it wan bit; yez'll have to git out."

(The door is pushed open, and a manly figure steps forth. Russet kid gloves and a silver-headed cane are the finishing touches to an impressive toilet. The figure disappears into Domestic Hall, quoting): "It is a deed in fashion."

Elevator-girl: "Yez can't go up; it's shtuck."

Office-girl (turning away): "Would you like to visit the Art Building?"

Chorus: "Yes!"

(They retrace their steps to the front door, and proceed to the Art Building.)

(Sounds of five-finger exercises float up from the lakeside.)

Maiden Lady (in alarm): "Why, it thunders!"

Office-girl: "No; I think that is the pianos in Music Hall."

(They try the side door of the Art Building and find it locked; they ring several times, but receiving no response descend to the back basement door.)

Office-girl: "There is a poem which has been much appreciated by the art students, in connection with their entrance at this door. It is this:"

ART GALLERY.

"In early days, when Death's cold hand
From man all joys had stripped,
All that remained of earthly forms
Had place within the crypt.

"Now 'dead' Art's beck'ning finger points,
And we, as they of yore,
With spirits ripe for martyrdom,
Enter the basement door."

(They reach the floor above.)

Office-girl: "These doors all have a use, though they may seem numerous. Perhaps we had better go through into the gallery first. Here is our celebrated Schreyer, the 'Bedouin Chief——'"

LEGENDA.

Young Girl: "My! isn't he fierce? It makes me think of a poem in my old school reader."

(A gong is heard.)

Chorus: "What is that?"

Office-girl: "That is the bell for the 10.55 recitation."

(Genial Papa and Young Man pull out their watches. Young Girl looks anxiously at a B. & A. time-table.)

Young Girl: "I can't seem to find anything about Wellesley on this time-table. Do you know when the next train leaves?"

Office-girl: "At 11.07. The coach is just starting from the College."

Young Girl: "Do you think I can catch it if I hurry?"

(Genial Papa, Young Man, and Young Girl bid farewell hastily, and make frantic efforts to find their way out. At last, heated and breathless, they reach the top of the hill. The coach is just passing, but after much scrambling and shouting they succeed in overtaking it.)

Maiden Lady: "It is so pleasant and romantic out here that I think I will eat my lunch under this tree. I (condescendingly) am pleased to have met you. Perhaps some day when I am attending the College I may return your kindness by assisting you with your studies. Good-morning."

Office-girl smiles and retires, saying, "Thank you."

Wellesley Ways.

WHENAS Aurora daunces up the sky,
Full soone the booming bell is hearde to ring ;
And merrie maydens chapellwarde doe hy,
Bearing their instruments for studying.
And never late, and never lingering,
Though mazie mudd-holes make them almost mad,
Their bootfull zeall to everie swincke they bring.
Of raine, of snowe, they never were ydrad,
Nor ever to take cutts from chapell were they lad.

And often, when brimfull of busie care,
They flee to th' restaurante to ease their woe,
And two p. m. doth find them eating there,
To Bible straightway they un murmuring goe ;
Lest kindling consciences should pricke them soe
That wounded they would be both sore and deepe.
The doctour then would pills on them bestoe,
And they on Sunday would stay home and sleepe ;
For such a luckless chance would make them wail and weepe.

But after Sunday, recreation day
Bids them arise and leave their drousie boure :
With faithfull hast her call they doe obay,
And feateously with friskes fill everie houre.
Through all the day they know nor stound nor stoure ;
And when the drouping night enfolds them round,
They clothe them faire and fine as fresshest flowre,
And gather them to list to music's sound,—
And if a man they see, with bliss their hearts doe bound.

STONE HALL SPEAKS FOR ITSELF.

NELLO! Will you give me the time? I am Stone Hall. 8.10? All right. You are LEGENDA? I don't understand you. I am Stone Hall. What do you want? The changes here this year? Oh yes! Our fire-escapes are the latest. The State Fire Commissioners ordered the fire-ladders put up, and the College Commissioners placed a shoot outside Inspector Blank's door. The shoot cannot be used while the ladder is there, and neither can be removed without an order from the Fire Commissioners. So the shoot is useless? Precisely.

You want to know the result of the new system of domestic work? In the first place it suggested the possibility of a morning nap, and produced a petition for a 7.15 breakfast. Who objected? The ambitious Freshman scorned such effeminacy, and longed to eat their oatmeal at six A. M. What happened? The Freshmen and the Faculty got excited, struck up a partnership, and war was proclaimed. But '91 came to the rescue, and a peaceable compromise was effected. Time has cooled the Freshman's scholastic ardor, and it is said that members of '93 are sometimes late to a 7.15 breakfast.

The Freshmen have found time to form a society, rivaling the Shakespeare in wit and wisdom. I leave it to your knowledge of the class to decide whether I. F. stand for Immature Fledglings, or for Independent Freshmen, or for Inimitably Fresh. From my experience I should say——

Other calamities this year: There were two consecutive Sundays of fine skating, followed by two consecutive Mondays of unmitigated thaw: moral, be good and you will be happy, but you won't have any kind of a time. The I. Fs. celebrated the end of the mid-years by instituting a new yell. (The electric bells have rung at all hours of the day and night.)

But in spite of these few drawbacks, and the lurid tons of essay-paper which have entered my door through the medium of the mail-bag, people seem to like me, partly because of the choice specimens botanical and otherwise which find shelter here, partly because of the sumptuous Sunday deserts, and partly because of Saturday evening fires of drift-wood; and my children sang on the winter sleigh-rides,—

“ Stone Hall, room for all,
How we love our dear Stone Hall.”

THE DIARY OF NORUMBEGA.

AUGUST, 1889.—During the summer's quiet I have been thinking,—a thing impossible during termtime,—and I have concluded to keep a journal. Amiel kept a journal, and so did Marie Bashkirtseff. Both became famous, and it was the journals that did it. I already have fame. Through Professor Horsford, my name is almost a household word throughout the land. But that is having greatness thrust upon me. I should like to acquire some more for myself. Yes, I shall keep a journal, and begin immediately.

SEPTEMBER, 1889.—I have a new neighbor on the hill. Wood has come to live near me. I always thought she would, though it took her a long time to make up her mind. In spite of the tales to the contrary, the '90 girls under my care seem calm, peaceable, and civil withal. I do not understand. Perhaps their true pugnacity and aggressiveness will appear later. This is doubtless a wife to lull me into quiet. Having the President under my roof is certainly a pleasure. I am sure of that. But those girls! Well, we shall see.

OCTOBER, 1889.—The quiet has continued, broken only by the festivity of our Hallowe'en party. The number of our guests, the pretty costumes of the girls, and the fun over the fortune-telling tricks, I shall never forget. What a rest and inspiration such an occasion is!

NOVEMBER, 1889.—Thanksgiving, reminding me of my many blessings, has come and gone. My dinner party was a large one, but enjoyable, too. After dinner the young folks "did" impromptu charades, to their delight and my pleasure.

DECEMBER, 1889.—The house has been lonely enough since my family went away. To-night I can hardly write for sleepiness (they always say that in journals). I have made good resolutions enough to last fifteen years instead of one. One thing I am resolved upon,—we must have some better weather; and another,—I shall never listen to disparaging tales again.

JANUARY, 1890.—Examinations are over, and at last we can talk about something else. But discussing our woes has become a habit. Since we can no longer look forward we look backward, appreciatively, and exclaim, "Oh, how thirsty I was!"

FEBRUARY, 1890.—We had a serenade last night. Such things come less often than I wish. In spite of the rain, in spite of the fact that it was not our turn to entertain, the serenade was very pleasant. But oh! what do people make journals out of?

MARCH, 1890.—We are getting so busy with our Pepita, that really I must lay aside all literary work. After all, a life like mine is too busy for such an ambitious undertaking.

FREEMAN'S ACTION, CHEMICAL AND OTHERWISE.

1889-90.

Experiment.

1. Add 25 splinters of Wood to F. Treat with hospitality.
2. 9 Freshman minds digested in high spirits.
3. Crackers + Hatpin + Lamp.
4. Take 9 Freshmen; mix intimately with 3 U C G's.
5. Take several fire-escapes + girls ad. lib. Let a Harvard man remain standing on board walk.

1. Prepare cautiously 1 Rice Pdg. Protect from alteration, as the mixture is liable to explode.
2. Take 50 girls. Start them for chapel (slowly) at 8.30 A. M.
3. Jan. 21. Keep stream of girls slowly passing over 1 lumpy lawn.
4. Carefully pulverize assorted girls with pestle of college dining room until nerves are clearly visible. Dissolve. Leave standing in F.

1. Take several Seniors late to breakfast, chapel, bed. Shake well.
2. Fifty girls + assorted mottoes. Stir occasionally.
3. Let F remain standing from April 10 to June 24. Test for unknown precipitates.

Observation.

FALL TERM.

1. Gilt edges on creamery precipitated after a few months' standing.
2. "Chee! chee!"
3. "Not the odor of a Christian home."
4. Mixture effervesces violently.
5. Many monkey-like figures sublimated on cold walls of house.

WINTER TERM.

1. No visible change.
2. They reach chapel at 8.15.
3. Muddy precipitate on front door-mat.
4. Around nerves as nucleus the crystals of recuperation form. Ebullition of good spirits. Rest accomplishes its charitable work.

SPRING TERM

1. No visible change.
2. Observations forbidden.
3. Slight ebullition, and certain heavy precipitates thrown down.

Conclusion.

1. Reaction of wood on F is Barbarous but Fair.
2. Violent ebullition from F-F² and a few blue flames.
3. Much gas generated.
4. Freshmen made to feel at home.
5. Harvard man goes away edified. Combustion feared.

1. Experiment succeeds after careful manipulation of apparatus.
2. Although F bell is changed, girls remain independent variables.
3. Incipient grass reduced.
4. F known as an excellent reviving agent.

1. ?
2. The latter state worse than the first.
3. "It is impossible to represent action that takes place by any intelligible equation."

JOURNAL OF A YOUNG ARISTOCRAT.

SEPTEMBER 13.—I began my career to-day. I went over to Freeman and looked around. Everything in order, and so beautiful. Freeman is a great success. I am ——, I don't know what. Freeman has been in existence a year and a half, and I only for one day. It is abominable! Ah! if I had only begun a year and a half ago, I should have been famous to-day.

SEPTEMBER 14.—The first rug came to-day. Fancy living this long without rugs!

SEPTEMBER 18.—The hardest thing to bear is to be continually disappointed in the things about us. To find a tallow candle where one had expected to find a student lamp! But these constant shocks have produced in me a sort of indifference. No matter what is passing, I take no notice now. I put my head out of the door only to go over to the College.

SEPTEMBER 22.—I am jealous,—jealous of Freeman. She does not seem at all new. Next week I will work so hard. You shall see! I am resolved to be a great success.

SEPTEMBER 26.—I have been reading. My books are all on the floor, and I must wait till the bookcases come before arranging them. Oh, time! time is required for everything!

OCTOBER 4.—A dustpan came to-day. I am radiantly, triumphantly happy!

OCTOBER 29.—To-day we had our first dinner here. Nothing is ever so good in reality as in anticipation.

DECEMBER 16.—We gave a play to-day.—“The Fair Barbarian.” It was good, but we will do better next time.

JANUARY 8.—Came back to-day. Everything so changed! The parlors are tinted, only they put the green ceiling in the blue room. Such a thing never happened at Freeman. It makes one wild with rage!

FEBRUARY 10.—We had a house-warming to-day. Portières and hall lamps were put up for the occasion. Waban came and looked at the curtains in the reception room. “Did you do that by yourself.” “Yes.” “Well, I am satisfied with it, very well satisfied.” At last I am what I have so long wished to be. I have wished for it so long that I scarcely believe it now to be true.

FEBRUARY 20.—The andirons came to-day. Norumbega admires them very much, and says they are finer than anything of Freeman's. Norumbega has the true artist's soul.

FEBRUARY 24.—To-day Waban told me that Norumbega said I was the gilt-edged creamery. I deserve the compliment, but it is expressed like a bourgeoisie.

MARCH 10.—The banquet to the Pierians was given to-night. I was absolutely beautiful; in short, I was a success.

MARCH 21.—Everybody is sick! Headache, sore throat, weariness, pharyngitis, laryngitis, catarrh! Oh! it is horrible!

MARCH 21.—There is in my appearance a certain languor; my eyes are large, my cheeks less rounded. Next week I am to begin a course of treatment. I am to take a complete rest, and attend only to the demands of the dressmaker and dentist.

A SHORT COURSE IN THE ELIOT.

Proposition IV.—Theorem.

If seventeen Seniors are situated in three parallel planes, and if in the same planes are five Juniors, four Sophomores, and one Freshman:—

I.—Since the Seniors are equaled by nothing (Ax), and also the under-class girls = 0 approximately (Ax), nothing could be desired $>$ the Eliot.

II.—If the Seniors be made pass from the 0° to 90° degrees, they may be considered a vanishing quantity, and the resulting function multiplied by $T = 2$ months, will become five Seniors, four Juniors, and one Sophomore.

I.—On November 3d, as a base, construct the figure P—NUTS.

The Eliot was = to the P—NUTS.

But the Muses are $>$ the Eliot.

The Muses are a whole; the Eliot considered with reference to the other college buildings is a part, and a whole is greater than a part.

Now it was obvious the Mewses were $>$ the Muses.

Reductio ad absurdum.

And perception papers were $>$ the Mewses.

Theory of Limits.

The locus of all students equally distant from the end of a paper is a room, in which the inhabitants are = to the paper and similarly placed.

But Washington's Birthday is $>$ perception papers.

Washington never told a — Sh! Postulate

Washington's Birthday = candy made + play given.

However, the candy is a vanishing quantity, and we need not consider it.

Since the observed data show that the play came to naught; we may regard o as the limit of the play.

However, as a play could be desired, Prop. II., things equal to the same thing are equal to each other $\therefore o$ could be desired.

But nothing is $>$ the Eliot.

This is evident on the face \therefore we do not write out the proof.

\therefore Since a whole is greater than any of its parts nothing could be desired $>$ the Eliot.

Q. E. D.

II.—The student can easily work this out for himself by referring to Props. I., II., and III.

COROLLARY.—If a recitation be cut by a student, the resulting equation may be expressed in the form Student — Recitation = o .

A CENSUS-TAKER VISITS SIMPSON.

SIMPSON was sitting half-asleep on her hill one afternoon, when a census-taker came to make her a professional visit. His visit was somewhat resented at first, but by means of suavity and a few leading questions, he soon won the full confidence of Miss Simpson's trusting heart.

"Your name, madam?" said the census-taker.

"Miss W. C. Simpson," she replied.

"Are you married, or single?"

"A spinster, sir" (dropping a tear).

"What family have you?"

Miss Simpson related the names, ages, and rank of her twenty adopted daughters.

“What is your business, madam?”

“I am embellishing my daughters with the pearls of wisdom from the ‘shells which are open to few,’” she answered, with poetic feeling.

Not without hesitation the census-taker ventured the next question.

“Have you amassed property since the last census?”

“Indeed,” said she; “let me show you the tone of our new piano;” and she lightly touched the opening chords of Boulanger, which had just arrived at Simpson.

The census-taker glanced through his books to see if Miss Simpson’s finances warranted the purchase of a piano, as he feared she was recorded as impoverished.

“Madam” (severely), “are you in debt for that instrument?”

With resentment Miss Simpson made explanation that a reading had paid for her piano. The census-taker apologized, but determined to exercise his prerogative. Fixing his professional eye on Miss Simpson, he said, “Recount as briefly as possible the chief of this year’s events.”

Miss Simpson complacently settled herself, and began: “In September I adopted my children, and we spent the month becoming acquainted. It was in October that we became convinced of our social obligations, and celebrated Miss Clark’s birthday with a reception.” Miss Simpson paused to enjoy the pleasures of reminiscence: after a moment she went on, cheerfully: “About this time we had fearful misgivings concerning the future, and we resolved to let the magic rites of Hallowe’en determine our destinies. So when October 30th came we descended, one by one, at midnight, into the ghostly gloom of the crypt, and there beheld the spectre who could unfold the tale we longed to know. A-a-ah!”—Miss Simpson showed signs of another poetic flight. The census-taker, not unalarmed, hastened to bring her back to earth with the remark,—

“How did you spend Thanksgiving?”

“O, on Thanksgiving Day we had Mrs. John Adams and other ladies of the Revolution to dine with us. They are charming ladies, are they not?”

The census-taker made a frantic guess, said they were “very charming,” and asked, “What was that fire you had some time in February?”

A look of horror came over Miss Simpson’s face.

“Indeed, sir, we did have a fire. It was at dead of night, and had not my daughters fought valiantly, we might to-day be in ashes.” She wiped the tears from her sweet, faded eyes, saying that “after such a brave deed as this, mention of other facts would seem trivial, but she was glad to have met the census-taker.” At which suggestion that experienced individual took leave.

LORD HARTINGTON'S prominent characteristic is a benevolent neutrality which is almost angelic.

MR. MCCARTHY is a difficult man to describe, and more so to imagine.

“Give it to 'em hot, RANDY!”

MR. CHAMBERLAIN has a much better heart than his detractors, and a much weaker head than his admirers give him credit for.

In a melancholy monotone MR. DILLON voices the most violent utterances.

Half MR. PARNELL'S success is due to his wonderful gift of silence.

SIR M. HICKS-BEACH is not entirely obtuse, and he is generally obedient.

 Sumtimes a dustpan snapped; they stopped not for that:
 On went the glory-game, girls⁷ went on.
 Forth then from Wel-halla frowned all the gods,
 Jealous of joy, and jawed them unmerciful;
 Laid tribute on them, handle tax called it,
 Harping on handles hurled from the dustpans.

 Bill for three dustpans waes brought inn ageinst her,
 Thrittig pennies apiece,—pious frawd,
 Which made to fatten the fund of the chapel:
 Made ninety, mad also made them.

Then they ceased from their costing, the brave ones,
And campus ceased to be covered with snaw,
And streamas rose, striking the Est Hill.
Other things also rose, as for instance the fund,—
And ire of ninety,—and price of dustpans,—
Till in the spring sprang * * *

² Much investigation has been given to this interesting tribe. They seem to have been a branch of the Girls, mentioned later in the poem, and to have been a sister race with the Gents.

³ Cyn means what is proper or suitable; etiquette.

⁴ Cemfas were warriors or heroes.

⁵ These would seem to be a peculiar kind of shield. The fact that the word is found in no other piece of literature remaining to us, gives a check to philological investigation, while it adds to the value of this fragment.

⁶ Thrage signifies times.

⁷ See Note 2.

⁸ Wierd has reference to fate.

THE FACULTY IN THE GYMNASIUM.

A Remarkable Instance of the Devotion of the Wellesley Faculty to the Students.

SPECIAL REPORT BY AN EYE-WITNESS.

HISTORY has seldom witnessed such unswerving devotion, such untiring loyalty and zeal, as has been this winter displayed by the Faculty of Wellesley College for the students. Those residents of the Main Building whose duty, as well as privilege, it is to relax their bodies, eke their minds, in the Gymnasium, had unintentionally conveyed the erroneous idea that "Gym" was considered by them a bore,—something to be as severely let alone as was consistent with undiscovered absence. This idea having once seized upon the Faculty, so weighed upon their minds that it became necessary to take immediate steps for their relief. A council being called by the Director of the Gymnasium, the members of this body nobly resolved to immolate themselves upon the altar of a good example. Here they voluntarily assumed a burden like that which seemingly rested heavy upon the shoulders of the students.

Accordingly for twelve nights they arrayed themselves in suitable garments, and repaired to the gymnasium. In order to serve as a complete example, they courageously took upon themselves the work of all four classes. For the sake of the Freshmen, with heads erect and sternums high, they wearily marched around and around the great black circle. Exhorted by the leader, they struggled bravely with Indian clubs, thinking tenderly, meanwhile, of the Juniors and Sophomores, in whose interests they were laboring. In their ardor and zeal, disregarding the dust upon the floor, they willingly laid themselves down and reflected earnestly upon the exceeding heaviness of their heads, and of all the members of their bodies.

But not half the proof of devotion can be told in this brief space. For the sake of the students the Faculty labored and toiled, yet doing it gladly, in the cause of love. And who shall measure their reward? Certes, not one who has borne an interested part in their heroism and their sacrifice; not one who reluctantly puts to LEGENDA test this molecule of her compounded information.

Song of the Junior History Note-book.

AIR—"I WENT TO THE ANIMAL FAIR."

UNCIVILIZED Junior mind,
For this hour I long have pined,
To show to you bliss you have hitherto missed,
And pleasures to which you've been blind.
Let me show you my neat little list—
It is free from each sentence-like twist,
And each cause and event of progressing intent
I carefully tabulate-late-late.

Uncivilized Junior mind,
Your bumps are ill defined;
And chaos I see where there ought to be
Tabulations of every kind.
Beneath my guiding eye
A wonderful change you'll spy;
The Junior shall hear throughout the whole year
An orderly history.

Guizot was an orderly man,
With a carefully classified plan
To trace each nation in all creation,
The ages dark to span.
The Roman Empire's fall,
The Goths and Vandals all,
Great Charlemagne's hopes,
The rise of the popes,
The rights of baron and thrall.
In his pages you'll find all these,
With more to instruct and please;
And you'll note 'em each day, in a tabular way,
With capital As and Bs.

LEGENDA.

Make ready your vague little pate
Concisely my words to state,
From the barbarous age to the very last page,
And the rise of the third Estate.
No notebook shall be late—
Guizot shall rule your fate:
And the temporal power that rose in an hour
You'll carefully tabulate-late-late.

Tupelo—A Wellesley Glee.

AIR—"NUT-BROWN MAID."

Oh thou, Tupelo! thou hast a certain magic charm;
Oh thou, Tupelo! thou hast a magic charm.
A magic charm is thine, love;
The charmer there is mine, love.
Oh thou, Tupelo! thou hast a certain magic charm;
Oh thou, Tupelo! thou hast a magic charm.

Oh thou, Tupelo! thou hast the lake, and moon, and stars.
The moon and stars are thine, love;
The son that's there is mine, love.

Oh thou, Tupelo! thou hast a rustic bench or two.
A rustic bench is thine, love;
The rustic on it mine, love.

Oh thou, Tupelo! thou hast a gentle, balmy air.
The balmy air is thine, love;
The wealthy heir is mine, love.

ON THE PONDEROUS TOME FROM WHICH SHE CONS HER LESSON.

AH, distinctly I remember, in the bright days of September,
How I longed to see Oppolzer, and to con its pages o'er;
How I glowed with aspirations to affect determinations
Of all orbits in creation—this my longing evermore.

Now Oppolzer seems gigantic, and it almost makes me frantic,
As with weary arms I bear it to the College o'er and o'er;
And the wild approximations made in my determinations,
Have sent my comet off where comet never went before.

And I'm lost in declinations, planetary aberrations,
And the foul approximations which Math. never made of yore;
Till my mind, once mathematic, has lost all its glow ecstatic,
And in wanderings erratic finds no rest forevermore.

Jingle.

The class that goes out when the decades meet,
Is wise, and brilliant, and good, and discreet.
'80's fame is known to all;
'90 brings with her no fall.

But unless the way they're classed
Change ere ten more years have passed,
College precedent will fail—
What can 'oo e'er avail?

AN ADDRESS TO—?

HEERS of “Ki yi, ki yi, ki yippi, ki yi, ki yi, ki yi for Wellesley!” heard in the distance as the speaker rises. “’Tis with emotion that I rise to address this assembly, whose hearts must have been stirred by yonder intelligent outburst of loyal enthusiasm! We who have watched the progress of this institution from its early days, have watched a steady growth in demand as well as supply. I have the honor to present to you a new and urgent need; to wit, the establishment of a Nursery and Institution for the Blind, to be used as a Psychological laboratory. All those who have suffered under Mr. Dewey’s dispensation will read their past experiences into my simple plea. It is a deed of charity, and as such will, I know, appeal to you.

“But, I hear some cold-hearted miser proclaiming this a piece of senseless extravagance. ‘Other more pressing needs are felt. More cottages to accumulate—I would say accommodate the hungry horde of starving intellects clamoring at our portals: an extra plank to the board walk; and, above all, an india-rubber attachment to the Chapel.’ My dear sir, Economy herself pleads my cause! Let me explain. We have now in college infant Freshmen by the score,—the best possible material for observing the slow growth of apperceptive organs.

“I regret to say there are also many blind among us, in all stages,—the hopelessly blind, the ignorantly blind, and the willfully blind. Is it not the truest, the noblest economy to utilize this material? ‘Shall Wellesley sanction an innovation?’ our conservative friends will inquire. Although this would be an innovation in Wellesley’s policy, ’tis time such an innovation were made. ‘The nineteenth century is an age of progress’ (R. M. M.) The evolution of education strides toward the scientific method: and shall not this method be applied to the ‘Science of Sciences’?

“But all other arguments sink into the background of consciousness as we reflect how the present system militates against the moral stamina of the students. Our proposed equipment will strike a deathblow at the root of this evil. A student steps into the Laboratory, observes his blind, or infant specimen, returns rich in accurate scientific information ‘as to what a two-year-old child will do with a piece of candy.’ Contrast this with our present system.—vague, time-devouring, insincere! Need I, in the presence of such a cultured audience, urge further this grand reform? The cause of science, the demands of morality, the fame of our Institution, cry for it!”

ONLY a girl, with her earnest eyes,
And her firm lips set with a purpose true ;
But her intuitions are clear and wise,
Her thinking has always an end in view :
The highest creative imagination
Is hers, not mechanical combination.

Her memory is a servant fine ;
From her permanent self the idea divides.
Her perception is rapid ; the local sign
Shows her the spot where her pencil hides.
She reads herself into all relation,
Which she learns by constant redintegration.

Deep feelings are hid in the girl's true heart ;
May they widen enough to take me in !
May they deeper grow as the years depart,
Be clearly defined in life's busy din ;
Be intense enough in each situation
To prevent immediate translation !

In sentiments of lofty lore
She wags her nimble tongue.

OF LOVE.

"Call back yesterday; bid Time return."

- SEPTEMBER 12. Fall Term begins at 8 A. M., Thursday.
The New Student, in the quiet of College Beautiful, longs sadly after the wiles of the world. Sister students, who have suffered likewise the year before, incited by fellow-love, devise pleasant diversions.
- SEPT. 14. In the dusk of evening strains of music strike upon her ear. The intention was to enliven, but the effect proved rather a "deploring dump."
- SEPT. 16. Being the Sabbath day, the thoughts of the New Student are directed to the text "God is Love," for serious contemplation. The name of the day, Flower Sunday, she decides to be a case of euphonism for Shower Sunday, judging from the copious showers of hers and Nature's tears.
- SEPT. 16. Freshman Serenade to Sophomores.
An unprecedented expression of gratitude.
- SEPT. 21. Advanced Freshmen Social.
Thus this little part dissolves itself, according to ethical laws, into the Universal Whole.—'93.
First meeting of the Art Society.
- SEPT. 23. Lotus Glee Club Concert.
- SEPT. 27. Opening of Society Hall.
An opening vista, wide in scope,
Revealing gladsome hours to view
Of mirth, borne in on winged hope,
Of friendships tried and proven true.
- SEPT. 28. First meeting of Shakespeare Society (Mid-summer Night's Dream).
First meeting of Zeta Alpha Society.
- SEPT. 30. Sophomore and Special reception to the New Student.
Where the New Student, infatuated by this culmination of Sophomoric attention and special supervision, eagerly (but wisely) ranks herself a Wellesley maid, and pledges (but rashly) her devotion to her beguiling elders.

OF THE BEAUTY OF A FAITHFUL MIND.

"We will work and mould the woman to the fuller day."

In a certain land, great grief prevailed concerning the loss of a beautiful and noble lady, who had been the light of her countrymen. No one could explain her disappearance, but it was commonly believed that she had been surreptitiously stolen, there having been many suitors for her hand. When she no longer walked in their midst, her people quickly began to sicken and fade away. The emperor became alarmed at this, and cast about to find some remedy. A number of maidens he summoned to his court, that they might daily be instructed to emulate this beloved lady, and thus achieve her end. Masters many, who had observed this lady's code of life, were brought before this assembly to expound her laws.

- JUNE 2. To criticise, in works of all men, the Master Mabie taught them was their function, but with generous, intelligent spirit. Nature's sympathy unloosed the tongues of the
- JUNE 6. most eloquent, and (on Tree Day) they burst forth in passionate appeal to their Queen, and summoned all beauty, art, wit, and grace to join them in their pledge as servitors to the court and followers of their greater benefactress. Beauty and wisdom they might have, yet the masters told them the Lady of the kingdom had a greater power. Strength they must have on land and sea, so maritime skill was aimed for then. "Bob Cooke" became their watchword, raw meat their diet, early hours
- JUNE 7. their law, and Noah's Arks their daily destiny. A trial of their nautical perfection
- JUNE 9. occurred before the court, and found them not wanting. Other trials in music, art,
- JUNE 14. science, and examinations on various themes, tested their progress. One senior band
- JUNE 11-20. stood approved and ready.
- JUNE 14. The little body of Truthseekers, in lieu of their near separation, met to bind them-

- JUNE 22. A final exhortation, a Baccalaureate sermon by Dr. Tucker.
- JUNE 23. On the following day a great celebration was held in the court of the Emperor, and the news spread far and near of the approaching entry of the senior maidens into the world's service. On the morrow the commencement step toward the end was taken.

LEGENDA.

JUNE 24.

Armed with the Emperor's signet in mystic B.A., B.S., they passed down the aisles through the throngs of visitors, who wondered, as they went, at their steady, unfaltering step, and the steadfast gaze in their radiant eyes; but only a few spectators could see in the distance afore the long file, a beautiful vision of a woman fair and stately, graciously beckoning while the maidens followed on, on, on, till lost to view.

THREE OF OUR MANY CHOICE BARGAINS.

NUMBER ONE.

This pretty Desk is solid quartered oak, selected, thoroughly well made throughout, antique finish, brass trimmings and guards around top. Spacious compartments, drawers, and pigeon-holes inside. One wide drawer outside; large shelf beneath for papers, or as a foot-rest.

THE PRICE IS $10.00.

NUMBER TWO.

A good Game Table is an indispensable adjunct in every house. Here is one in richly grained solid oak, with hinged top, made to lock down automatically when in use, and capable, folded, of stowing away in the space behind a door or sofa. It is rigid and firm as a rock, and will last an ordinary lifetime.

ONLY $5.75.

NUMBER THREE. TABLE OF CONTENTS.

THE CABINET.

1st. The top shelf for a French clock or vase. 2d. Under this a wide, deep recess, with bevelled mirror at back. 3d. A large, square closet, with lock and key. 4th. Beneath this a drawer.

THE WRITING-DESK.

1st. Automatic metal hangers to support lid when desk is open. 2d. Deep compartment below, four pigeon-holes, and wide shelf above. 3d. Dust-proof finish throughout. 4th. Just a good size; ready always for immediate use.

THE BOOKCASE.

1st. Books are handy when writing. 2. Weight all at bottom, giving strength and rigidity to the whole. 3d. Three wide shelves for fifty or sixty volumes. 4th. Rod for curtain to save dust, dirt, and fading.

Ask yourself if this Cabinet-Secretary Bookcase is not worth $45? Well, our price is $15.00.

On receipt of 10 cents we will mail our catalogue, containing 260 Engravings.

Tired Brain

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE,

Prepared according to the directions of Prof. E. N. HORSFORD.

This preparation is a brain food. It increases the capacity for mental labor, and acts as a general tonic and vitalizer. It rests the tired brain, and imparts thereto new life and energy.

Dr. D. P. McCLURE, Rantoul, Ill., says: "Very beneficial to strengthen the intellect."

Dr. O. C. STOUT, Syracuse, N. Y., says: "I gave it to one patient who was unable to transact the most ordinary business, because his brain was 'tired and confused' upon the least mental exertion. Immediate benefit and ultimate recovery followed."

Dr. CHAS. T. MITCHELL, Canandaigua, N. Y., says: "I recommend it as a restorative in all cases where the nervous system has been reduced below the normal standard by overwork, as found in brain workers, professional men, teachers, students, etc."

Dr. F. W. LYTLE, Lebanon, Ill., says: "I have personally used it with marked advantage when overworked, and the nervous system much depressed."

Dr. E. W. ROBERTSON, Cleveland, O., says: "Can cordially recommend it as a brain and nerve tonic."

FOR MORE THAN HALF A CENTURY,
THE OLD UNITED STATES HOTEL, OF BOSTON

has maintained its RESPECTABILITY AND EXCELLENCE.

Originally the largest Hotel in Boston, it has been twice enlarged years ago, by the extensive wings on Kingston and Lincoln Streets, named respectively Oregon and Texas.

During the past five years it has been under the management of

who has completely renovated, enlarged and improved the property, and last year added still another hundred rooms, by building across from Texas to Oregon.

Think of a Hotel from Texas to Oregon, and you will understand why this notice is written, which is to say that the UNITED STATES recommends itself for its quiet, orderly management, and the notable character of its guests, its numerous public rooms and grand old parlors, broad halls and numerous stairways, while none of its 500 Guest Rooms are above the fourth floor.

These, with its very central location, its most excellent table, and moderate charges, recommend it to all who have once shared its hospitality.

SHE was dreamily scanning the bulletin-board, when suddenly she read, "Undergraduates cut and made to order!" It was a shock to find this heretofore vaguely-felt truth published so conspicuously. But she recovered when she saw that she had misinterpreted the sensations from the word "Undergarments." She had read herself into them too much.

Mr. Arakelyan, who represents this firm, is one of the enterprising printers of Boston. In 1883 he launched into the venture which has since met with much material success under his management. There already have been printed in his establishment a goodly number of standard works, and for several years he has had the contract for the Boston Directory. An extensive order, executed several times for Jordan, Marsh & Co. by Mr. Arakelyan, was a large illustrated catalogue, the number printed being 100,000 copies at each issue. Messrs. Jordan, Marsh & Co. wrote, concerning the work: "You printed our Fall and Winter Catalogue in a very satisfactory manner. The quality as well as promptness of the work was better than we ever had before."

He may safely be trusted with all classes of printing, for his presses are of the latest and most approved kind. Publishers of Books, Catalogues, Periodicals, etc., illustrated or otherwise, will find it to their advantage to consult him.

BOOKS BY JULIA A. EASTMAN.

"Miss Eastman has a large circle of young admirers. She carries off the palm as a writer of school-life stories. Her style is characterized by quick movements, sparkling expression, and incisive knowledge of human nature."—Boston Book Bulletin.

Kitty Kent's Troubles. 12mo, illustrated, $1.25. The heroine's experiences are just such as countless other girls must meet with, and therein lies the charm of the story.

Striking for the Right. 12mo, illustrated, $1.25. A story illustrating the necessity of kindness to animals. The pupils of the Eastford High School form a humane society which does a noble work. A premium of $1,000 was awarded the author for this MS.

Short Comings and Long Goings. 12mo, illustrated, $1.25. The ups and downs of wide-awake boy-and-girl-life in a country home, brightly and naturally told.

Schooldays of Beulah Romney. 12mo, illustrated, $1.25. A dozen gay schoolgirls find in the counsel of a true Christian woman the aid and encouragement they most need in their girlish trials and difficulties.

Young Rick. 12mo, 12 full-page illustrations by Sol. Eyttinge, Jr., $1.25. Young Rick was a genuine boy, mischievous and motherless. Aunt Lesbia found it no easy task to look after him, but in the end, her kindness and good sense made a man of him.

The Romneys of Ridgemont. 12mo, illustrated, $1.25. A story of the New England hills; of sugaring and haymow conferences, and old-fashioned picnics, and good times generally, such as young and old enjoy reading about.

BOOKS BY KATHARINE LEE BATES.

Sunshine. Oblong 32mo, beautifully illustrated by W. L. Taylor, 35 cts. This exquisite prize poem is the very embodiment of spring sunshine, and may well put all young readers in good humor, like the "little lass with the laughing lip," of whom it tells.

Santa Claus Riddle. A Poem. Square 12mo, illustrated in colors, paper, 35 cts. Goody Santa Claus. A Poem. Square 12mo, illustrated, paper, 25 cts. Two poems for children, so bright and dainty that older people will also be charmed by them.

Wedding-Day Book. Edited by Katharine Lee Bates, with original illustrations by Geo. F. Barnes. Cloth, square 24mo, $1.25; white parchment, $1.50; morocco, $3.00; satin, $4.00. Every-day blanks for autographs. The prettiest imaginable gift for a bride.

It is never "too late" to register, as there is no week, and hardly a day in the year, when teachers are not called for at this office.

CIRCULARS AND FORMS SENT FREE.

This Bureau is the oldest in New England, and has gained a national reputation. Its facilities are unsurpassed, while its charges are low.

Wellesley Graduates are very popular as candidates with our patrons, and many of them are already in our field at work.

TESTIMONIALS:

From Supt. A. P. STONE, Springfield, Mass.: "We have obtained several teachers from the New England Bureau of Education for the schools of this city, all of whom have proved highly satisfactory. We have always found there a list of well-educated and experienced teachers to select from, and the representations made to us concerning the candidates have been in every case full, reliable and true. Much time has been saved by seeking teachers through the Bureau."

From Dr. T. J. MORGAN, Supt. of Indian Affairs, Washington, D.C. "HIRAM ORCUTT, LL.D.: I have had considerable dealings with your Bureau during the last two years, both in securing teachers for important places, and in securing positions for teachers. I have been surprised and gratified at the intelligence, good sense and skill displayed in your management. You have established a claim to the gratitude of teachers and school officers. I wish you abundant success in your important, difficult and delicate work."

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Mrs. Annie Jenness Miller says that "Personal Beauty and Grace, in either man or woman, are elements of power." Over a million sensible women and children have worn the Ferris "Good Sense" Corset Waist, and these Corsets are rapidly growing in favor among all intelligent women. The "Good Sense" Corset Waist is made to conform to the natural beauty of the human form as God made it, and is not made after "French" patterns. Good health and good looks naturally follow when women and children obey Nature's laws. The demand for Ferris' "Good Sense" Waist is now so universal that every leading retail store in the United States has them for sale, but some unprincipled dealers offer inferior imitations because they can thus make a larger profit. If you want the best for your money be sure your Corset is stamped "Good Sense."

SONG OF THE SIREN--CONTINUED.

2. The sonometer clangs out its resonant woe,
The overtones wail as they sway to and fro;
The nodes and the segments are hopelessly mixed,
The phoneidoscope's disk is with horror transfixed.

get you to take Demorest's Family Magazine, as the stories are so good. Even the boys watch for it every month, as a place is found for them also in its pages; and Mr. Allen swears by it. It is really wonderful how it suits every member of the family."

MR. LEE. "Well, perhaps I had better send for a Specimen Copy; for if it is anything like what you say it is, it will amuse and instruct the whole of us."

MRS. LEE. "I see that W. Jennings Demorest, the publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York, is offering to send a Specimen Copy for 10 cents; so we can't lose anything, as each number contains a "Pattern Order," entitling the holder to any Pattern she may choose, and in any size—which alone makes each copy worth 30 cents; and I just want a jacket pattern like Mrs. Allen's. The subscription price is only $2.00 a year; and I must say I can't see how they can publish so elegant a magazine for so little money."

MR. LEE. "Why, Addie, you needn't cry about it! I only said Mrs. Allen was a very well-informed woman, and I wished you would follow her example."

MRS. LEE. "Yes, and last week you said you wished I could manage to look as stylish as Mrs. Allen,—and she makes all her own clothes. But she has what I haven't."

MR. LEE. "What is that?"

MRS. LEE. "Well, she gets all of her information from the Magazine they take. I admit that she knows all that is going on, and is bright and entertaining in conversation; but I could do as well as she does if I had the same source of information. She lent me the last number of her Magazine lately, and I learned more in one hour's reading about various social matters and the topics of the day, than I would pick up in a month by my occasional chats with friends. It certainly covers every topic of interest, from the news of the day down to the details of housekeeping; and everything is so beautifully illustrated, too. Every time Mamie goes over to the Allens' she comes back and teases me to Use SAPODONE for the Teeth.

Sapodone is the trade name for a liquid, saponaceous dentifrice which is giving perfect satisfaction to those who use it. It contains no injurious ingredients or substance, the use of which the most exacting dentist could not fully approve.

It cleanses the teeth and sweetens the breath, and leaves a cool, refreshing sensation in the mouth.

We desire to call your attention to this preparation, and invite you to give it a trial.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.—First wet the brush, then add a small quantity of Sapodone and apply to the teeth in the usual manner.

Sapodone is put up in two sizes: 2-ounce vial, price 35 cents; 3½-ounce vial, price 50 cents.
